

Questions to Ask Your Attorney

Going through the legal process after sexual abuse can be overwhelming. Asking the right questions can help you feel prepared and supported.

- What experience do you have with sexual abuse cases?
- How do you communicate with clients and how often will I hear from you?
- What are the possible outcomes of my case?
- What costs or fees should I expect, and do you work on contingency?
- How long do you think my case will take?
- Will I need to appear in court, and if so, how can you help me prepare?
- How do you handle negotiations with large institutions or insurance companies?
- What support services or resources can you connect me with?
- Who will be handling my case day to day—you or another attorney in your office?
- What do you need from me right now to move forward?
